CURIOUS AFFRAY.

A curious affray has just occurred here. The wife of a wine merchant named Franz, in the Brunnstrasse, was found by her husband in company with a young Englishman, the cashier of one of the local banks. They had some words and eventually resorted to blows. While they were fighting the woman cut the arteries at her wrist. The Englishman was severely wounded about the head, and his adversary was seriously injured. Both the men are now in the city hespital.

THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH.

The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, who arrived on her, were accompanied by a valet and maid. The Duke is an insignificant looking man, with a light, pale complexion, a small moustache, and an insignificant goatee. He was completely enveloped in a loud checked ulster, and wore a seedy-looking derby hat. The Duchess was looking remarkably bright and youthful. LOCAL POLITICS.] The horizon of municipal politics has cleared up wonderfully, and there is now a fair opportunity for estimating the probable results of the approaching nominating conventions. The present plan is for the resple's League to make its formal nominations to-morrow, and for the Republicans to ratify teem at its adjourned meeting on Friday, on which evening the County Democrats will take similar action. Very little is being said by the Tammany leaders regarding their own intentions. It is generally believed, however, that a satisfactory candidate on the coalition ticket will be followed by the withdrawal of Mr. Grant's name from the Mavoralty canvass, and the nomination of a first-class candidate. THE NEW TARIFF BEING FELT.

The full effect of the new McKinley tariff tax on many of the necessaries and lesser luxuries of life is becoming more apparent. The prices of dry goods may remain stationary for a few months on account of the large stock of goods taken in by dealers in anticipation of the enactment of the law; but the advance of prices on perishable commodities will be sudden and sharp. The exact proportionate rate cannot at present be obtained, as no one under the sun knows precisely what the provisions of the new law mean. One of the points of the new law mean. WASHINGTON, Oct. 8,-[Special.]-Right here at the capital of the nation the effect of the McKinley Tariff bill is being felt very perceptibly. The people of Washington as a rule pay but little attention to Congressional legislation other than that which relates to the District of Columbia. Many of them did not know that the Mc Kinley bill had anything to do with them. Now they are finding out that it has. DIPLOMATIC TREATMENT OF THE COUNT.

While on his visit to Washington the Comte de Paris has been treated as became one of his rank, character, and services, yet it is perfectly apparent that scrupphous care has been taken to prevent anything like an official character being given to his reception. The administration acts in this way in order to avoid any umbrage being taken by the French republic, which is so very touchy in all things that relate to people who have a claim to be rulers of France by heredity. General Scholield, who accompanies the Count, said to-day that that gentleman understood the situation per-by heredity, teneral Scholield, who accompanies the Count, said to-day that that gentleman understood the situation perfectly, and appreciated the motives actuating this government. He would, he said, have it no other way, as he is simply on a visit to this country, going over familiar scenes and reviewing old memories. The talk about Mr. Harrison having left for the West in order to avoid meeting the Count is nonsense. If he were here now the President would gladly receive the distinguished Frenchman, and if he returns before that gentleman leaves these parts, the Count of Paris will be a most welcome visitor to the White House. All things, save a recognition that he is the Bourbon heir to the throne of his mitwe country, are open to the Count. The coullient criticisms of the French press upon the manner in which he has been welcome to this country have had no effect whatever upon the mem-

The number of pensions go to those number of pensions go to those Northern States where the Democrats are crowding the party and the Congressional districts which show signs of unoasiness under the Kepublican yoke, and a desire for a change. It is a potent prostitution of a great branch of the government service, and Commissioner Raum is doing his full share of the work. It was not for nothing that a Republican committee of the House refused to convict him after an investigation that proved that he was unworthy to hold even a watchman's position in the important bureau which is under his charge.
